

These total budget figures include estimated tuition, housing and meals (living expenses if you are residing off campus), books and supplies, transportation expenses, and personal and miscellaneous expenses. The only items in the budget that will relate directly to your charges are the tuition and room and board (if applicable). Books are purchased separately and we do not charge for transportation and other educational costs.

This list is your current scholarships and grants from different resources. Scholarships and grants are funds that you do not have to pay back.

Your net cost is how much you may need to pay. You can use a tuition payment plan and/or loans.

Your work study opportunities are listed here; if you have this award, you can apply it toward your net cost.

The loan options section contains the amount that you can use to satisfy the net cost. This is a recommended amount; however, it may not include your total eligibility and it may recommend more than you actually need to borrow. Please speak with your financial aid representative so you can determine how much in loan funds, if any, you need to borrow.

The graduation rate refers to the percent of first time, full time freshman who graduate within 6 years. This does not include college transfer students or students who transfer to another school and graduate.

The loan default rate is a 3-year percentage for all graduates and non-returners. The percentage represents cohort students who have defaulted on their student loans at Mount Olive College.

Median borrowing represents the total average loan debt for 4-6 year graduates and non-returners. The federal loan payment displayed is the actual monthly payment for borrowing the median loan amount during your college career.

This box shows the expected family contribution number from your FAFSA form. It also notifies you of other potential options to meet your college cost of attendance.
